"THE DEEP PURPLE."

Will Open Next Monday Evening at the Adelphi.

"The Deep Purple" comes to the Adelphi Theatre, Philadelphia, heralded by its great success in New York and Chicago. There are some who do not relish the zeal with which managers advertise these metropolitan runs, reading into the inference that local theatre-governors have no judgment of their own, and are only too ready to follow the dictates of New York or Chicago in adopting theatrical fashions. There was a time, indeed, when managers did think that a New York run insured prosperity in other cities. Now that many plays have achieved success long before reaching New York, the metropolitan run is no longer considered so necessary.

At the same time, it must be evident that a long run in a big city is a fair indication of a play's value and appeal. Successes are made largely by word of mouth; the opinion of a man's friend will influence him more readily than a printed criticism. There are only a few cities in which a play can be established in this manner. If a play lasts six months in New York, it means that hundreds of thousands have been sent to see it. In this way a play with a record comes indorsed, not only by a few critics, but by a multitude of people as well.

Again, the play that has found favor both in New York and Chicago, has pleased two very different publics, and is therefore doubly guaranteed. New York often spurs what Chicago cautions, and vice versa, but a play that pleases both is fairly certain to meet approval anywhere.

"The Deep Purple," which was one of last season's really big successes in both cities, is a vivid, realistic piece dealing with an interesting phase of life known to most only by hearsay. Many of its characters are crooks and swindlers, and they have been depicted by writers who have given much study to the criminal and his habitat. The authors are Paul Armstrong and Wilson Mizner, the former the author of "Salomy Jane" and "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and the latter a magazine writer celebrated for his markedly realistic career in real life. Both authors have mastered the trick of injecting the pulse of life into their characters and can write that bright, snappy dialogue that the modern American playwright has found so useful in getting his ideas over the footlights. It is a Liebler & Co. attraction, enacted by a cast that contains enough players of reputation to insure a splendid presentation.

"THE BALKAN PRINCESS."

A Big Success at the Lyric Theatre. Miss Louise Gunning and her company of 75 persons begin the second and final week of their engagement at Lyric Theatre in "The Balkan Princess" on Monday evening, October 2. Philadelphia is fortunate in being able to see "The Balkan Princess" so early after its long run at the Casino and Herald Square theatres, New York. Originally produced in London at the Gaiety the piece ran there for over one year. It was seen by William A. Brady, the producing manager, who secured the right for this country and it is by arrangement with this manager that the Shuberts are presenting Miss Gunning in the opera.

The story of "The Balkan Princess" with the delightful music by Paul Iluberna makes it one of the most enjoyable musical comedies that has ever been imported to this country. The scenes—three in number—are laid in the mythical Balkan state of Balaris. Princess Stephanie is about to ascend the throne when it is discovered that she must marry. The six Grand Dukes of the realm are commanded to appear before her and seek her hand. She rejects the five who appear. The sixth, Grand Duke Sergius, refuses to respond and the Princess determines to seek him out. She discovers that he frequents the Bohemian restaurant on the outskirts of the kingdom. Incognito she goes to the restaurant where she meets and falls in love with the handsome Duke. The Duke, of course, does not know who the pretty stranger is or else he would not propose a toast to the downfall of Princess Stephanie, which he does at the end of the act. It develops that Sergius is opposed to Stephanie ascending the throne and he frequently writes scathing articles for the daily press. Therefore when he proposes a toast to the downfall of the Princess, she discloses her identity and orders his arrest. He is taken a prisoner to the castle where he doubtless would have remained for some time had the Princess not relented. Then seeing that she really loves him the two youthful royalists agree to ascend the throne serially.

The story is so well told and is so logical throughout that The Evening Telegraph of Philadelphia is now running the tale serially.

The company is one of the best ever seen in Philadelphia in a musical play and in addition to Miss Gunning includes Arthur Stanford, as the Duke, Dorothy Morton, Teddy Webb, Dora Hamilton, Grace Emma, Harry Leavelly and a large and handsome chorus.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Farms in the Sacramento Valley are Yielding Immense Profits—

Here's the Opportunity of a Lifetime. A Chance to Own a Farm in California Where There are More Sunny Days Than in Southern Italy.

Land that is made more wonderfully productive by irrigation. Behind this great project is the Sacramento Valley Irrigation Company, headed by Mr. W. S. Kuhn of Pittsburgh—a banker of national reputation.

You Don't Need a Big Farm

Thousands and thousands of acres in the Sacramento Valley are being converted into one of the world's richest and most fertile farm and fruit districts. Farms of twenty acres, forty acres and eighty acres yield greater profits than eastern farms many times the size—profits that will amaze you. The soil is wonderfully fertile, the variety of crops amazing, the harvests frequent. By irrigation the land will produce 10 months out of every 12.

Much higher profits are frequently made in the yield from oranges, figs and lemons, often running as high as $2,500 to $3,000 per acre.

These figures tell the story. These profits are actual—they represent just what is being accomplished by those who are already in the valley. There is no question of the accuracy of the figures. They are published by three Chambers of Commerce and a State Board of Trade.

A Hungry Market

There is always a market ready to swallow your crops at highest prices the moment you deliver. No waiting for buyers. The buyers are looking for you. Splendid highways run on two sides of every forty acre tract. The main line of the Southern Pacific goes through the property. The Sacramento River nearby affords freight carriage the year round. Close to Sacramento and San Francisco.

4¢ a Day Per Acre Buys This Land

We sell land at $125 and upwards per acre. There's not the slightest doubt but that one year's development will double its value. Irrigated land in California sells from $200 to $1000 per acre—land that is no better than ours. We have every confidence that in a few years' time the land we now offer you will command an equal selling price.

Title to Land and Water Rights is given you after your fourth payment, so that thereafter the farm stands in your name. Upon receipt of title rights you can also give shares—each share purchased—in the irrigation company, so that after all payments are made the irrigation works becomes the property of the farm owners, with permanent water.

TIMELY TOPICS OF PLANTS AND PESTS DISCUSSED WEEKLY
 By H. A. Surface, State Zoologist of Pa.

A NEW QUINCE PEST.

A quince grower in the eastern part of Pennsylvania has sent to Prof. H. A. Surface, of Harrisburg, some twigs from his quince tree with the statement that they were girdled by an insect. He made inquiry concerning them and the proper remedy to use.

The reply was as follows:
 "The insects which you sent to us injuring your quince trees are the twig girdlers. This is not a common insect, on quince, and I shall be glad to have you send me other specimens, or specimens of injured twigs, which doubtless contain the larva, and from which I can rear others."

It seems to be very closely related to the Raspberry cane borer (Obers), as it girdles the twig in two places, just back of where it lays its egg. The remedy would consist of cutting off the twig just below the second girdle or ring, and burning it. This, of course, would be for the purpose of preventing the further spread of the pest, and should more strictly be called a preventive measure than remedial.

I am glad to note that spraying with Naptha soap destroyed the apple aphid completely, and gave you satisfactory results. I appreciate your interest in sending us this specimen, and shall thank you for others should they be found.

PLANTING A YOUNG ORCHARD.

The editor of a prominent newspaper in Western Pennsylvania writes to Prof. H. A. Surface, asking him how he could lay out his orchard of eight acres in such a way that the trees when planted would be a suitable distance apart for the different varieties, and at the same time would stand in straight rows, which could be cultivated each way.

He also asked for a list of fruits of various kinds to plant.

The reply is based on practical experience, and contains suggestions which may be helpful to many persons who wish to plant home orchards. It is as follows:
 "Replying to your letter asking about planting your eight acres in fruits in such a way as to have straight rows throughout when the planting is finished, I beg to say that your best plan will be to plant your permanent apple trees forty feet apart. Half way between these, or twenty feet apart, plant your peach, plum and cherry. Half way between these, or ten feet apart, you can grow quince, dwarf pear and grapes. Half way between these again you can plant gooseberries, currants, raspberries, blackberries and strawberries."

Your fillers in each instance can extend in each direction between any of the others. I am aware that there is a little difference in authorities as to the distance of planting, but I am satisfied that the standard distance for apple in good soil should not be less than forty feet, while a very safe and practical distance for planting peach, pear, cherry and plum is twenty feet. Further than this, I am at present growing dwarf pear trees ten feet apart, and half way between the standard trees planted twenty feet apart. Again half way between these dwarf pear trees I have my currant and gooseberry bushes as above.

I am well satisfied with this arrangement. In fact, you can put a row of gooseberries each direction between the currants and pear trees. If you wish, by a narrow cultivator you can keep them all cultivated, which will be best for all the trees and plants. This will also permit you to cultivate them in each direction.

The varieties of apples that I would suggest for home use for your region are as follows: Yellow Transparent, Red Astrachan, Summer Rambo, Maiden Blush, Smokehouse, Jonathan, Grimes, Golden, Rome Beauty and Stayman's Winesap. The Stayman will perhaps prove to be your best winter apple. A few others seem to do well in that region. If you have elevated ground, the Baldwin will thrive there. The Winter Banana is also planted southward from you quite extensively.

For a commercial orchard I would greatly reduce the number of varieties, holding chiefly to Jonathan, Rome Beauty and Stayman's Winesap, with some Summer Rambo.

For pears the best varieties are the Bartlett, Seckel, Lawrence and Duchesse. The latter is the variety to use as a dwarf pear.

The best commercial peach is the Elberta, and it would be well to plant the following:
 Champion, Mountain Rose, Elberta, Old Mixon Free, Late Crawford, Fox's seedling, Smock, Reeve's Favorite and Wonderful are also first class peaches.

For home use I would recommend the planting of some earlier varieties than these.

For cherries the best sour cherry is the Montmorency Improved. Early Richmond is also to be recommended. Among the good sweet cherries are the Ida, Governor Wood, May Duke and Bigarreau.

I recommend full planting if it is done properly. While planting with dynamite is getting to be quite a fad, because new, it has not been sufficiently tested to be proven universally beneficial. There are some cases in which it would do no doubt prove helpful, but no one can say whether it would be beneficial or injurious, and in your particular case you should understand the circumstances there.

Melvin Jerschel, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerschel, of 609 Main Street, Lancaster, died at his home from lockjaw. The disease developed following the vaccination of the boy prior to his entering the public school. The attending physician said that lockjaw set in as a result of a severe cold following vaccination.

TO FARMERS.

The Dairy and Ice Company, of Newtown, are now receiving at their plant over 6000 pounds of milk daily.

One of the finest fields of corn reported is that grown by Peter Cruik, of Rushland, on the B. Frank Fox farm. Mr. Cruik took the prize at the Harrisburg State show January, 1911, for last year's crop.

Wilmer A. Twining and son, Frank, of near Wycombe, have two Holstein cows which have each surpassed more than an ordinary cow's ability during the past two years, each one of them having four calves to their credit in that time.

It is said by those who are in a position to know that it costs upon an average about $30 a year to keep a dairy cow. Upon this estimate she must produce 150 pounds of butter annually, worth 20 cents a pound, to pay her board. All above that amount is profit and any amount below represents loss to the dairyman.

ROADVIEW BOARD APPOINTED

Judge Staples Names Nine Men Who Will Run Under the New Law.

Judge Staples, presiding over the Court of Bucks County, under an act passed by the State Legislature last June, has appointed the following members of the Permanent Board of Roadviewers of Bucks County: Michael F. Achey, Democrat, of Milford Square; Franklin H. Bean, Republican, of Quakertown; William Stuckert, Republican, of Doylestown; J. Ralphus Freed, Esq., Democrat, of Doylestown; G. Wynkoop Rubinkam, Republican, of Jamison; Henry Wilkinson, Republican, of Lahaska; Henry Y. Pickering, Republican, of Yardley; George W. Strouser, Republican, of Bristol; and John C. Cornell, Democrat, of Oakford.

Each member of the Board will be allowed $5 per day for each day they are on duty. The appointment is made under the new law and will do away with the appointment of a board every time a road is to be made.

INDIAN RELICS.

A large collection of Indian and Revolutionary relics in the possession of George Maust, Jr., of Whitmarsh, is of special interest because nearly all of them were found on Fort Hill, where Washington's army was encamped in the fall of 1777. On this historic hill Mr. Maust's father was a farmer for many years, and the son in following the plow discovered countless mementoes of the Continentals. Among these are two eight-pound cannon balls, several grape shot, many leaden musket balls, an old rusty bayonet and great quantities of musket flints. The Indian relics consist of battle axes, tomahawks, slingshot stones, arrow-heads of all sizes, and a great variety of stones which the Indians used in shaping implements and weapons. Knives, smoothing stones and slinging knives, all of stone, give evidence of the aborigines' remarkable skill. There are also two well-executed pebble arrows. A stone has a neat smooth hole, five-sixteenths of an inch in diameter, cut through solid stone.

An auto party of Perkasies had a lucky escape on the River Hill Upper Black Edge, when the running gear of their machine gave way and they were backward down the steep incline to the bottom.
